COURSE OVERVIEW

This course explores creative ways to use outdoor spaces as powerful learning environments. Participants discover how nature-based activities improve motivation, wellbeing and critical thinking across subjects. Through practical examples and ready-to-use tasks, the course shows how to design lessons that connect curriculum content with real-world experiences, encouraging curiosity, collaboration and environmental awareness while making learning more active and meaningful.

METHODOLOGY

A practical, experience-based approach including:

- outdoor workshops and guided tasks
- reflection and group exchanges
- creative activity design
- micro-teaching in natural settings
- digital tools for documenting learning

Participants learn to transform outdoor spaces into dynamic classrooms.
