COURSE OVERVIEW

This training course introduces teachers to creative ways of using smartphones for filmmaking and digital storytelling in education. Participants learn how to plan, shoot and edit short videos with accessible tools, using visual storytelling to support language learning, motivation and multidisciplinary projects. The course explores cinematography basics, sound, framing and narrative techniques, helping educators integrate student-created videos, interviews and digital stories to enhance engagement and communication in the classroom.

METHODOLOGY

The course adopts a hands-on, creative approach combining:

- practical filming workshops
- scriptwriting and storyboarding
- group shooting activities
- editing practice with mobile apps
- digital and AI-supported storytelling tools

Participants will create their own short video project and exchange ideas with colleagues.

TARGET GROUP

- Regional and local authorities;
- School/ adult centre management department, collaborators and volunteers
- Teachers & school staff

LEARNING OUTCOMES

By the end of the course, participants will be able to:

- Use smartphones for filming, editing and digital storytelling.
